EASTER DISASTERS. Epistle from Cockney Bill, to his Country Courin Dick.

Of my breaking my premier you shall not complain, So I hasten to feurish my goos-quill main.

The I'm free to confess I'm uncommonly dull And unfit to concert any wit in my shall.

These bitter cold rinds and the vet dappy seather, Unhingen my nerves and whole system ingether; I'm as languid and fond of repose as a Turk, And very anserse to all manner of work;

But I'll raily my spirit and strive to be gay, And drive from my mind the blue devils away.

So here goes, my Dick, I say Nil desperundum, (Those words being Latin, you may'nt understand them) And the meaning is this, though you're drownded in care, t's never of no sort of use to despair. At the close of my last Linform'd you as how Your friend had been cotch'd by the chia on a bough; And there I hung roaring, a subject for mirth, Like Mahomet's coffin, 'twixt heaven and the earth; Assistance, in pitiful tones, I immob'd, Assistance, in pitful tones, I inwoh'd,

For Hilly was certainly nigh being chok'd;
And lucky it was that sensitance I found
From a Butcher, as landed me safe on the ground.
Ite releas'd me at once, by a jerk of the heel,
Just the same as unbroking a shoulder of weel;
The friction had rubb'd all the hair off my weesen, So much for the pleasure of hanging high trees of For that hit of vit, Dick, you now owe me con, I vas always uncommonly fond of a pua. Ere long loot rid of my horror and tright, Ere long Lyot rid of my horror and fright, My feathers I should, and found every thing right, Delighted to I- transfer a firms once more. Though my obin and my throat were confoundedly. By the byte, I should till you the swells of the day Have mow'd from their throttle the "favourite" a And the order of things that has lately appear'd And the order of things that has lately appear'd Is to have all the mazzard corrich'd with a beard; A razor no dandy of fushion will use, And Bond-street appears to be peopled with Jews; To sport a smooth chin is an utter diagrace, And St. James's has borrow'd the cut of Duke's-place. The ladies consider it manly, they tell us, But here I denounce them as hatrified fellows. What say you to that, Dick ? I think that'll do: No bad un, my tulip:—you now owe me two! But once more to the Hunt, for my Dick may be urging That his cousin's a little too fend of disperging,—
That my werses would be more correct and methor onl,
If I didn't branch forth in a style episodical.
Then I'll keep than bighway, while it is in my pow-

Though I may leap the hedges to gather a flower.

Now, as I stood mourning the loss of my nag.

The star well," I exclaimed, "to the sports of the stag!

O you it for this, that all prudence o'erstepping,

I mounted a charger and rolle down to Epping—

By fale's stein decree at no characte exhibit, But hung on a hour like a thief in a gibbe!!"
scarcely had utter'd the words with a sigh, When a drag by a couple of donkies draw by, And the socier of Bob Fig. as resides ea our hill, Cried "What have you done with your oss, Cockney Don't stand there lamenting, but mount in my drag, We shall just be in time for a brush at the stag We shall just be in time for a brush at the stag."

You may guess, without doubt, I was presently in it,
And like lightning the donkies were off in a minute;
"Hurra!" I exclaimed, "if good fortune befal, I'll be in at the death of the deer arter all."
To pleasure and mirth all my troubles giv'd place,
And I felt all alive to the sports of the chace.
The spirits of Bob were with mine in full chorus,
But we know'd wery little of what was before us;
My trouble was not at an end by a deal,
For, alse! in an instant off started a vheel;

Captain Helsham's Letter of Explanation respecting the late Duel. The following letter from Captain Helsham has appeared in an evening paper the (British Traveller):-"Doven, April 10. "Mr. Editor,-Having seen a letter in the newspapers from Mr. F. Crowther, of the 44th Regiment, dated the 4th of this month, I feel myself called upon in justice to his family, as well as to my own, to state the simple facts of the cause which led to the melanchely affair at Boulogne-sur-Mer. "I received a letter from Mr. Crowther or Tuesday, the 31st of March, desiring I would give him the particulars of an objection made to his becoming a member of a club to which I belong, and particularizing me as the author of such objection. On receipt of that letter I called on Mr. Crowther, and in presence of another officer I stated to him verbatim what I had before unfortunately said relative to an affair which took place at Cheltenham some years

"Mr. Crowther, in reply, admitted I was per-fectly correct, but asserted that he took every means in his power to obtain that satisfaction for personal chastisement which every soldier, and every gentleman, feels himself called upon to demand. I requested Mr. Crowther to name to me any friend who took an active part in insisting for retribution for so gross an insult. His reply was, he had no friend; I then mentioned the names of some intimate friends of mine, and, formerly, acquaintances of his, on whose honour and integrity any man of honour might repose with safety, and some of whom were at Bath and Cheltenham at the time of this occurrence, from any one of whom, could be procure the elightest assurance that I was in error, I offered to withdraw my assertion, and to apo gise for my indiscretion. This proposition he refused. I then offered to write myself to any one of those gentlemen, if he felt any delicacy on the subject, and I repeated to him my willinguese to abide by their answer, and, if in error, then to apologise. This he refused likewise.

"Mr. Crowther then proposed going over to London, and bringing from Peel's Coffee-house the paper of the day, in which he said he had posted the gentleman from whom he received the insult before alluded to, and who would not come forward to give him satisfaction. My re-ply to that proposal was—'I am willing to receive even that testimony of your intentions to act as an officer and a gentleman, and, on such proof, to recall what I have said; and if not content with that, to give you the most ample satisfaction ever man could wish for. With this he seemed content, and on my leaving him, in present site, and the alterations now making by message of another officer, (whom, from motives of delicacy, I shall not name,) his last words were to this affect:—'I shall leave Boulegne for London this night, and obtain at Peel's Coffeehouse such a document, and receive your apology.' To my astonishment, in half an hour after, I received a letter from Mr. Crowther, requiring me to appoint a friend to meet Mr. Molony to arrange for what must follow. coive even that testimony of your intentions to

The prosecutor said, that having occasion to sue a tenant of his, he was recommunded to the prisoner, as an attorney, who immediately underprisoner, as an attorney, who immediately under-took the business, saying that he had many more such jobs on hand. He also told the presen-tor that he practised both in town and country, and that when he was obliged to be in the country, Mr. Chitty conducted his town host-ness. (Great laughter.) In some time after-wards, he told the prosecutor that he had com-menced a suit against his tenant, and added; that, 'lawyer like, he wanted money.' The pro-secutor gave him 2l. then, and 5l: more in a few days subsequently. It did not appear, however, although the prorecutor supposed he was an at-torney, and addressed him as such, that the defendant expressly called himself an attorney, and he was therefore acquitted. The defendant was then called up to rec the judgment of the Court on two former convic-tions of similar offences, which took place in the early part of the sessions. He put in an affidavit in mitigation, and requested permission, in case the Court meant to transport him, to remain a month longer in the new prison, to give him an opportunity of arranging the business of several persons which he had in hand, for a Mr. Spen-

Insolvent Debtors' Court, April 22. Xavier Chabert, a foreigner, who described himself in his schedule, as a resident of Dublin, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Liverpool, and London, a professor of chemistry and pyrotechny, a general commission-merchant, and an exhibitor of curiosities, was opposed by Mr. Nicholis, on behalf of the Messrs. Precton, of Edinburgh, haberdashers, from whom he received musime to the value of nearly £406. In answer to questions put to him by Counsel, he stated that he was in the habit of putting fire and molten lead into his mouth; he professed to swallow them, but he mouth; he professed to swallow them, but he only put them into his mouth, and took them out again in a sly manner, for they were too het to eat.—(Much laughter.)—He could swallow prussic acid without experiencing any ill effects from it;—that's what he called pyrotechny. He had five partners in the beginning, but as they were not thriving, be latterly acted aleas. He had a counting house in Dunster-hill, but he had no property except a wife and child. (Laughter.) He received goods from his opponents through a traveller, and he sold them in a week after to a Mr. Christoph, who never paid him, and when a Mr. Christoph, who never paid him, and who could not be found any where. ST. DUNSTAN'S-LONDON.

The demolition of the church of St. Denstant the West, in consequence of its dilapedated and dangerous state, being determined on prepara-tory to the erection of a new church on the same-site, we are induced to give some particulars of the present venerable structure; and the moreespecially as the measure will be the means of a great public improvement, in widening the nar-rowest part of Fleet-street. The church is a very ancient foundation, and the first authentic mention made of it is in 1237, when it was given to Henry the Third by the Convent at W ster, in whose gift it was, for the support of the Rolls Home, a receptacle for converted Jews.— The Parish is still connected and joined with the "Rolls Liberty," the latter district deputing a certain number of inhabitants to assist in the parish business.

After the reign of Henry, it was transferred to the Abbot and Convent of Alnwick, in Northaumberland, and so remained till the suppension, by Henry the VIII. Lord Dudley passessed the adowson of the Church, under the title of a Vicarage, granted by Henry VI. and subsequently to Sir Richard Sackville, whose describe ants alieneated the impropriation to George Rivers, who retained it to 1631. The cheest is built of brick and stone, and the work and anchitecture of different ages. It escaped the free of London. The tower is 100 feet in height, the body of the church is 30 feet high, to feet long, and at the west and 60 broad. On the cast side, fronting Fleet-street, is a statue of Queen Elic parish business.

and at the west end 60 broad. On the case side, fronting Floot-street, is a statue of Queen Elizabeth, crowned and gilt a few years since. The inscription on the base, acarly hid by the outler's shop, denotes it to have been removed from Ludgate; taken down in 1760, and given by the City to Alderman Sir Francis Gosling, who caused it to be placed in its present situation.

The two figures of wild mon striking the cast-ters with clubs, and which have added so much celebrity to the church, and to this day attract gaping crowds, were set up in the year 1671.—Within the church are several very ancient moments, but much disfigured by whitewash, and the many repairs the church has undergone. In the belifty is a very line peal of bells, but it is now considered dangerous to ring in peal, and they are only chimed. It was here Sir Matthew Hale, who afterwards became a great companyers.

By the MONTGOMERY, from HAVER, PA nis papers to the 9th of May have been received at NEW YORK. The evening papers of yesterday furnish us with copious translations. The intelligence from the East, and the proceedings in the FRENCH CHAMner of Deputies, will be found interesting. On a day previous to the debate given below, M. Dern carried an amendment, in opposition to the administration, tending to fix a real responsibility on the King's ministers; which the liberal journals represent as a great triumph. The disturbances in some parts of the country, caused by dearness of food and stagnation of trade, are said to

An election was held at NEW YORK, on Tuesday, for Delegates to a Convention for the re-construction of the City Government. The whole number of votes taken was about nix thousand; not one-fourth of the number given at a former election. In one ward, we observe, the late Chancellor, Mr. KENT, was in nomination; but his services were dispensed with, and Major Noan was cho-

In the LONDON MORNING CHRONICLE O May 9; we find the following article, translated from the Counsus FRANCAIS, relating to the recent assessination of M. CALEMARD LATAY-ETTE, a member of the FRENCH Chamber of Deputies:- " The origin of M. Plaquiol's hatred towards M. Calemard Lafayette was unfounded jealousy. This induced him to challenge the latter several times, but without effect. At the last election M. Calemard was the President of the College of Pay, and was pointed out as the momber for the Right, although he was on the same side. M. Plaquoil used all his efforts to prevent his election. In the hall of the college he lavished insults on Calemard, and renewed his attacks. For a long time his pecuniary affairs had been embargassed; but he expected some assistance from the indemnifications granted the emigrante, and to obtain this he made an application to the commission of liquidation. M. Calemard formed a part of it. Not receiving what he conceived his right, he never ceased reviling Calemard until he quitted Puy, a short time sines, for Paris. The captain of Gendarmerio of Haute-Loire thought be ought to inform M. Caleand of hisdeparture, and put him on his guard. Last Thursday he spent the evening with one of our Generals, with whom he had been at school. He conversed about his misfortunes, and spoke with some warmth against M. Calemarde; but sething in his reproaches could at all lead any one to suspect his bloody design. He left the General with an air of gaiety, and hoped that the next visit would be from the General. On Friday a friend met him, who told him that he had 200f. which was owing to him. Plaquiol mid he might keep the money, for he should never have any occasion for money again. On Baturday morning, a short time before he perpetrated the murder before alluded to, he wrote to the General above mentioned, telling that by twelve o'clock he should be no longer at his hotel. He commended his children to the care of the General, and requested him to send his two sons to the United States, and obtain letters of recommendation for them .aquiol leaves five children. On opening the ody of M. Calemard, the laceration was so reat, that it appears inexplicable how he could re lived so long. A second ball has been exted from the left shoulder. The immediate supe of death was a hemorrhage in the left

A very beautiful steam-boat is now running from CHAMPION's ferry, at Arch street whatf, to Copper's Point, one of the most agreeable situations on the JERSEY shore, opposite the City. The builders, Messrs. PENNINGTON and FEFFERS, are entitled to great praise for the construction of the boat, which is not less indebted to them than to the engineer, Mr. Tnomas Holloway, for the rapidity and elegance of her motion. Mr. Holloway, we understand, also constructed the engines of the two boats at the wharves next above and below Market street. The average passage of the Arch street boat across the river is not more than six minutes. Mr. RIDGEWAY, who keeps the house on the Jersey side, is a very pleasant host; and they who have had the fortune to fall into the hands of one of an opposite nature-by no means a rara aris in this quarter of the world-know how to value this part of the concern. Many persons, who are seldom led to the Eastern extremity of the city, have no notion that a building so extensive and commodious as the hotel at Arch street wharf exists there. Mr. CHAMPION's care and skill, in managing such an establishment, will ensure him the continued possession of the respectable patronage he has already received; and the number of his visitors will increase as his house becomes more known.

Extract of a letter from Port-an-Prince, dated 21st May, 1829 .- " Since our last, per Amelia, we have to notice an increased demand for American produce, and a gradual improvement in prices, occasioned by the coninual and unusual scantiness of supplies. The fish ar ticles are the most in demand, we have no stock on hand, and arrivals do not satisfy the great consumption that is made. Flour once more is looking up. Sales of good fresh have been readily effected at $18, and speculators are eager to purchase; the quantity on hand daily decreases rapidly, as no import can be noted. Pork, both Prime and Mess, are improving and no doubt very shortly must command high prices, as well as tosacco, lard and butter, as our usual supplies of there provisions are generally derived from New Orleans, and this season we have only had two arrivals from that port, and no more are expected. This circumstance, which is very unusual, will no doubt operate forcibly on the market until the Fall; and New Orleans produce, until that period, must be scarce and at high prices.

We have no flattering accounts to give of our exports which continue to range at our last quotations. Some per: tion has taken place in coffee, which is eagerly chased at $9 371.

FROM HAVRE

The ship Montgomery, arrived at New-York, from Havre, whence she sailed on the 10th of May, has brought Paris papers to the 8th of May inclusive.

These papers contain some details of the disturbances which have taken place in several of the departments. The most serious took place at Montmorillon and at Nevers, when large mobs, of whom a large proportion were womes, stopped the grain carts. The rioters were dispersed by an armed force, and the leaders taken to custody. Other riots of a less serious nature have been of no very serious character. had occurred at St. Denis d'Orgues, Coulans, No-According to the New York American, gent-de-Rotrau, Saumur, Concourson, Oiron, St. Fargeou, Dieppe, Lille, Rathel, Lapalliese, Lyon and Gisors. No farther advance is now apprehended in the price of grain, by which these riots were occasioned. A decline of the price has already taken place in the markets of some of the departments, and from 100 to 150 vessels loaded with grain are shortly expected at the lower Seine and at Caen.

On the 17th of May the French Minister of Marine opened his budget in the Chamber of Deputies. By the budget of 1827 and 1828, he observed the French navy was fixed at 126 vessels. It was afterwards increased to 178, in consequence of the blockade of Algiers and the treaty of the 6th of July. The expedition to the Morea, the blockade of Algiers, the pursuit of pirates, the sending a fleet to Brazil, the suppression of the slave trade, and other political considerations, had rendered it necessary to add 27 vessels more to the navy, of which 7 were ships of the line and 17 frigates. Of course these augmentations of the navy, and the expeditions in which the vessels were employed, must have made extraordinary expenses necessary. Bills for supplemental appropriations for liquidating the unanticipated expenses of the past year were then introduced. The opposition censured some of the expenditures as wasteful, but the ministers obtained large majorities. The following are some of the items to which the French Minister of Marine referred in his speech as necessary to be provided for:-

Repairs of vessels at Navarino, Advance for five frigates, to be finished in 1829. Charters of merchant vessels used for transporting troops to the Mores, and the army of Ibrahim from the Morea to Egypt, For the evacuation of Cadiz, and the expedition to Brazil, there was exand for the deliverance of Greece 4,950,800f The assassination of M. Calemard Lafayette, which we have already announced, caused much sensation in Paris. He was the Deputy of the Upper Loire, and the assassination took place the face of day, and in the middle of the Place Louis XVI. A. M. Plagniol, the assassin, lay in wait, it seems, for the Honourable Deputy, and, going up to him, discharged a pistol at him, and the ball passed through his breast. The report of the pistol brought the guard to the spot, but the assessin blew out his own brains before he arrived, and died on the spot. "The assassin, who wore the cross of the Legion of Honour, was a land owner in the department of the Indre and Loire, aged 52 years. He was personally known to the Honourable Member, and it is generally supposed that he committed this to gratify private revenge; but the ground of his animosity is unknown. M. C. de Lafayette was a worthy, inoffensive man; his opin as Deputy were known only by the place which he occupied on the right of the Chamber. It seems that Plagniol had premeditated his crime, and the suicide which followed it, with atrocious resolutios. In the morning he put six letters in the post, and he was seen prowling about in the garden of the Tuilleries, and in the Place Louis XVI. watching, undoubtedly, for an opportunity to strike his victim." In the night of the 18th April, a tremen dows fire broke out at Lyons, in that part of the city called Les Brotleaux. It commenced in a stable, and the wind being very high, the flames were carried with rapidity to several houses contiguous, that were built principally of wood, and occupied by carpenters, cabinet makers, and timber merchants. The story of an exp e story of an expedition to Mexico is reeated in a letter of the 23d of April from Madrid. The measure is said to have been determined of in consequence of the represenations of some priest from Mexico. The Infant, Don Carlos, is said to have declared himself in favour of the measure, and it is added that he expedition will sail from Havana in Octo-

A private letter from Madrid, of the 25th ult. ices the departure of the King and Queen on that day for Aranjuez, in defiance of the re-monetrances of Ferdinand's principal physician, who wished the journey to be postponed, in con-sequence of the alleged insalubrity of the air of Aranjuex, at this season of the year, when it appens to be rainy. The letter revives the report of an expedition to Mexico, with the addi tion that it was preparing with extraordinary activity, though with great secresy. It is further stated that two Powers, whose names are not mentioned, had been pressing their media-tion on Ferdinand, but that he had leat a deal ear to their proposals.

PARIS, May 6. Extract of a letter of the 22d ult. from Lison-" It appears from the last despatches reseived from Don Pedro, that Don Miguel must lescend to the rank of Regent. Some of the Powers have determined not to give up this point, and the energetic manner in which the imperor has recommended them to defend the egitimate rights of his daughter, has produced he effect which the Emperor expected. The apostolical party in Spain, who have learned this decision, have come forward to offer to Don Miguel their support to resist all Europe, if ecessary. The Usurper has also been informed that M. d'Acosta, new Spanish Minister in Portugal, will shortly arrive at Liebon. This Envoy is instructed to announce to Don Migue that in case of a reverse, be and his mother may reckon upon an asylum in Spain. We have even some statesmen who entertain the hope that in the event of a crisis Portugal may be united to Spain.

Letters of the 8th ult. from Corfu, announce, that the Greeks having made themselves masters of the castle that defends the Gulf of Lepanto, on the side of Western Greece, the fortress o Lepanto, which was in possession of the Turke, was treating for its surrender. "The Greeks are at present," says the letters, "mosters of nearly all the country lying between the Gulf of Arta, near Corfu, and the Gulf of Volo, in the Archipelago. Along this line there are no important points except Missolonghi, Lavadia, and Athens. The Turk? who occupy them will be unable to maintain their ground long on account of the want of provisions, and the difficulty of receiving succour. Thus the Greeks will, ere ong, have made the conquest of the countries destined to form a part of the new State of Greece, in pursuance of the late resolutions of the Allied Powers. The tract of country comprehended between the Isthmus of Corinth and the line of Volo and Arta is of an extent nearly equal to the whole of the Peloponnesus, to which it was at first intended to confine free

ANOTHER BATTLE IN THE EAST.

The St. Petersburgh Journal, of April 20, gives the following account of another brilliant violory gained by Gen. Paskewitsch over the Turks n Asiatic Turkey:-

St. Peteraburgh, April 20 .- By means of eport dated March 15, Adjutant General Count Paskewitsch, of Erivan, has forwarded to his Majesty the following details of another victory gained over the Turks:-Major-General Hesse, who had received orders to concentrate his division in Guriel, received information that the Turks had shown themselves in considerable force on the boundary o Kabulet, so as to keep the neighbouring villages of Guriel in a constant state of alarm. It had been ascertained that Kaya-Oglu, the Pacha of Trapezunt, had advanced at the head of 3,000 men, and had received further reinforcements o the extent of 5,000 men from Batum, Kabulet Ishanetes, Tshakroy; that he had formed an entrenched camp on the banks of the lake situated between Kintrishi and the fortress of St Nicholas; had erected other works upon the narrow pass between the forest and the lake, and had it in contemplation to attack our division, and make himself master of Guriel, as soon as he should be joined by a reinforcement of 10,000 men, which was daily expected from Prapezunt. Major-General Hesse immediately resolved upon anticipating the enemy.

On the 5th of March the General proceeded with a battalion of the Mingrelia regiment of infantry, three companies of the 44th rifle regiment, in all 1,216 men, with 4 light field pieces and two howitzers, together with 1,315 of the Gariel militia, across the river Natonebi, and advanced along the sea shore, directing the militia to take the upper road through the forest. Three wersts from the passage of the river, the Turks in pos-session of the works opened their fir., but being outflanked, and attacked in the rear by the militia, they were seized with such a panic, that they ned that as well as the other works, and retired in confusion to the camp, situated between the sea and a march covered with wood.

This camp, which occupied a space of 300 fathoms, was defended by a deep ditch, and a ing to it being intersected by similar ditches. The enemy received our detachment with a drestful fire, and maintained a sanguinary com-

LATE FROM CONSTANTINOPLE. The Augeburgh Gazette contains the follow ing intelligence of the 12th of April from Con-

A Tartar, sent off from Teberan by the British Charge d'Affaires, has brought intelligence that the Russian Embassy, and all the Russians who were in Persia, have been massacred, and the Schah himself is in danger if he does not suspend the payment of the war contribution to Russia. All the foreigners at Teheran are in dread, and the English Charge d'Affaires has ddressed to the Persian Government a note, in which he declares that he shall consider it responsible for any act of violence that may be exercised against British subjects; and at the same time demands the punishment of those persons who are guilty of the massacre of the Russians. The ter point it would be very difficult to accom plish, as the whole nation took part in the massacre. Operations have commenced on the Dangbe, and the Turks have assumed the offensire. Bloody actions have taken place between he Russians and the garrisons of Silistria, and Giurgewo, which have issued in the loss of men on both sides. The Grand Seignior is only waiting the arrival of subsistences from Smyrns to set out for Adrianople. Ten thousand Asiatics recently passed through the capital on their way to Routschouk. The Grand Vizier has arrived at Choumla .- Postscript. We this moment learn that a great quantity of subsistences arrived from Gallipoli, is distributing to the different quarters.

According to private accounts from St. Pe-craburg, the lady of the Russian Ambassador in Persia was still at Tauris, with some officer of the Embassy, at the time the catastrophe took place at Teheran, by which means she forunately escaped the carnage.

[Tauris is situated at the north-east frontiers Persia, several hundred miles distant from Teheran, which lies south-west of Tauris,] Turkish Frontiers, April 8 .- All the accoun from Constantinople speak of the dreadful state of alarm of the Christian inhabitants of the capital. Day and night they fear some ebullition of Mahomedan fanaticism. When a courier arrives the fears of the Christians are general; for, should any disaster befal the great Turkish army, the lives and property of the Christians would be in the greatest danger, notwithstanding the protection of the Government. The fine houses on the banks of the Bosphorus country are all deserted; the rich foreigners, and even the Jewish merchants, have, for the most part, returned to Smyrna. It is very seldom that a Christian ventures to go from Pera and the other suburbs to Constantinople, properly so called, where the Mollahs, Cadi, and Dervises, have so inflamed the fanaticism of the Mussul mans, that a trifling circumstance would be sufficient to lead to the murder of a Christian, no matter of what nation; and the increasing want of provisions naturally increases the exasperation of the Mussulmans.-Endeavors are made to encourage them with the hope of the caravans from Smyrna, and a large supply of corn and rice from Egypt. The latter, it is said, will be brought here in part by English ships; but it will hardly escape the vigilance of the Russian blockading squadron. The Bairam is ooked for with impatience. To prevent any disturbances, the Sultan, as we hear, will not have it celebrated with the usual pomp, but only by extraordinary prayers.

Four days afterwards, (April 11,) he will go, it is further reported, with the chief members of the Divan to Adrianople, where Redschid already is encamped with 50,000 men. It seems that Shumla will be again the point of union of the main force, and the most vigorous resistance may be expected. From the Constitutionel.

CONSTANTINOPLE (PERA) April 2 .- (Extracts from a Private Letter.)-For three days we have been almost destitute of provisions. The Turks do not allow the Frank merchants to bring us any. The small quantity that reaches us we receive from Bumkdere. It seems there have been great disturbances at Galata amongst the storekeepers and Turkish sailors. It is said that the grand Seignior has ordered the principal mutineers to be executed. It is supposed that the famous Sandjack Scheriff, or the Standard of Mahomed, will be carried to-morrow to the Imperial mosque of Sultan Achmet, to announce to the faithful Mussulmans the day of the Grand Seigniori's departure for Adrianople; and it is thought that Mahomed will set out on the 10th, accompanied by the Imperial troops, and preceded, as well as followed, by a numerous body of fanatical volunteers; almost all of whom have made the campaigns of 1809 and 1810 against the Russian army before Shumla. At Pera a re-port had been circulated that the Turks had experienced great losses in the vicinity of Varna and Silistria. It was yesterday announced at Constantinople that the Turkish troops encamped near Rudschuck had advanced towards Giurgevo. The best informed individuals think that the Russians will not attempt to take Shumla, but that, after investing that fortress on all sides, they will leave a corps of reserve there, and that the main body of the army will march upon Constantinople. It is quite certain that the Russians will meet at the Bulkan, the strongest, the most obstinate, and most formidable resistance. The passages of these craggy mountains are intrusted to the Turkish cavalry called Spahis. A list of fresh favours is published at Constantinople, which the Grand Seignion promises to that already privileged cavalry after the victory It is reported that these several corps amounted to upwards of 30,000 men. It cannot be comprehended here why the Russians display no more activity in their military operations. Some say that the inundation of the Danube has counteracted their plans; and others that the Russian Ministry relies much on he scarcity of provisions which they expect to see soon in Turkey. If this be their calculation they are mistaken; for our English residents at Pera have assured us that supplies will not be wanting; and that if, for the present moment some suffering prevail in this respect, there will shortly arrive, both at Constantinople and amongst the army, an abundance of provisions, and of every necessary to preserve tranquility.

The following intelligence is dated Frontiers of Moldavia, April 20:-It appears that the Turks have areumed the offensive along the whole line of the Balkan, and the garrisons of Widdin, Silistria, and Giurgevio, have made sorties smultaneously. General Diebitsch immedietely dispatched orders to the troops that were coming up, to accelerate their march, and the Ceneral himself is advancing on Silistria. The guards are entering the principalities, and will orin a corps of reserve.

It appears that the service of guarding the de files of the Baikan is confided to 30,000 Spahis, the flower of the Turkish armies, and perhaps, the finest cavalry upon earth.

el says:-"Austria, foresee The Constitutio flagration that may arise in Europe out that power would not only dispose of the Po-lice and the Contingents of each Italian State, but also to prepare the Princes to undergo the fate which she designs for them in her views of aggrandisement in Italy. There will be, within a few months, a Congress of Italo-Austrian Princes at Rome, and it is expected that the Emeror Francis will be present." The Gazette de France of the 9th has an ar-

'are approaching; internal order is interrupted in different parts of the realm; the seeds of disciution sown by the revolution over all France develop themselves, and acquire strength by the weakness of the central power. Serious troo bles have broken out at Chateauroux, at Blanc, at Chateaudup, at Laval, at Charite, and Nevers. These troubles, occasioned by the want f provisions in the departments where corn is dear, are combined in the others with the avow ed resistance to those employed to collect the excise on liquors, with the publications in the factious journals of Paris, the declamations of provincial prints, and the allusions of demarogues in the tribune. In Nievte two towns we risen at the same time, to distract the public strength, indicating an actual plot. At Nethe seditious and distributing money among the groupes." The writer complains of the language of the liberal papers, as being intended to fan the excitement; and concludes by saying, "We are meanwhile without a minister, in a Chamber of which nearly half the members respond to hese anarchical appeals; and a remedy for the public danger is already sought, by the re-organization of the National Guard of Paris; that to say, by the triumph of armed rebellion; and this suggestion is made by a Journal in the pay of men who are the king's counsellors, (the ournal des Debate,) and the budget is taken up for discussion in the midst of seditions, imposts refused, and incendiary declamations. Demands for the public service will be met by objections on account of the high price of bread; the peoole will be stirred up against the army, against be magistrates, against the salaried officers of the state, and the government itself. The danger of our situation is immense; the symptome ecome so alarming that it has become a subject of inquiry whether it would not be prudent to rorogue the chamber until September, in order remit the discussion of the budget after the harvest, and not to leave the factious such terrible means of exciting masses to opposition."

The same journal says that the chamber of deputies presented an afflicting spectacle at the itting on the 7th of May, when three men, who had solicited from strangers in 1815 the expul-sion of the Bourbons, had appeared boldly applauding themselves for what they had done; the ninusters remaining silent in their seats during the whole scene; while M. de Lafayette was eulogising the Cortes and speaking abusively of prince of the house of Bourbon. The followng is a sketch of the debate referred to.

Upon a supplementary grant being proposed for the Minister of Marine, amounting to 23,-

300,000 francs. M. Hyde de Neuville rose to address the Chamber. His Excellency stated that, in the estimates for 1827, the number of the vessels of the royal navy were fixed at 126. In consequence of the blockade of Algiers, and the treaty of July 6, they were carried, in 1828, to 178: and other circumstances that had since arisen, had rendered it necessary to add 27 vessels more. These vessels had been employed in the blockade of Algiers, the expedition to the Morea, the evacuation of Cadiz, the expedition of a fleet to Brazil, the chase of pirates, and an active interarmy had never been more respectable nor more respected than at the present moment, which dvantage was to be attributed to the orders given by a generous King. The navy had done every thing it was possible to do; and it was only just to say, that it had been nobly seconded by the allied fleets. The Minister then entered into lining the bill of indemnity offered by an Hon. Deputy, and observing that Greece saved, was the bill of indemnity for Ministers.

M. Charles Dupin said that the estimates of hese expenses ought to have been laid before he Chamber last session. The situation of France did not, in his opinion, require 200 vessels. England had only 150 armed vessels; but she employed her resources in preparing a formidable navy for a time of war. It was astonishing that the Algiers expedition should cost so much, when two regiments would have sufficed for the conquest of that country. The expedition to Brazil did honour to Admiral Roussin and the men under his command; but the vessels n those seas might have been employed, instead of a special expedition. Notwithstanding that the Morea expedition was terminated, and the evacuation of Cadiz complete, a fresh grant of 80 millions was asked for 1829. A great waste was occasioned by officers of rank being appointed to inferior posts, because they received ay, not according to their post, but according o their rank. Economy was not observed he manning nor building of ships. In their construction, brass was employed instead of iron, marble instead of wood, and gilding instead of

The Minister of the Marine replied that Engand had more than 600 vessels affoat or in construction. A complaint had been made that France was building steam vessels, whilst England was not. The fact was that France had only 9 steamers, whereas England had upwards of 400. Besides, England had no necessity imposed on her of augmenting the number of her essels. She had no expedition to send to Brazil; she had not to evacuate Cadiz, -in short, she had no want of an extra number of vessels. As to the officers of the French Navy, their number was not in proportion to that of England or the United States, which was an economical nation. Officers were not only wanted for the vessels, but for the ports, the colonies, and

M. Devergier de Haurenne, considered that uch great sacrifices being made for the war with Algiers, the reasons which rendered the war necessary, ought to be made known to the Chamber. If it could be done, with honour, the earliest opportunity of putting an end to this war should be embraced. The expedition to Brazil was necessary. It was highly desirable that consular agents should be sent to South America for the protection of commerce. The Keeper of the Seals entered into a vindiention of the Government, with regard to the war with Algiers. The French Consul had received an affront, for which satisfaction ought o be obtained. An attack had been thought of, but the bombardment of Algiers was not an easy affair, for since Lord Exmouth's expedition, the environs of that place had been strongly fortified and mounted with cannon. With respect to South America, Consuls had been sent to those states which presented guarantees; but the establishment of relations with countries rent by revolutions, was attended with many difficulties.

M. Laisne de Villevesque, said, that Algiers was now defended by 1500 pieces of cannon, and more than 12,000 men. No success could be expected, unless 25,000 or 30,000 men were sent agamst it.

Several Hon. Deputies then entered upon the question relative to the power of Ministers to obtain grants by ordennance. Some maintain. ed that it was illusory to incur expenses, and hen when the money was expended, to ask the Chamber to authorize grants. The Minister of the Interior stated that a Minister was authorized by the law to incur an expense upon ordennance, but was bound to show that he was force ed to adopt such a course by circumstances, mforseen at the time when he asked for the or-sitting, inquired whether since the ment of the Charter, he, or any of his Hon. friends, had been guilty of a culpable act, which proscribed the family of the King, and nust have annihilated the institutions sworn to.

M. de Conny, said, he remembered that for a ong time a faction had existed that had armed teelf against the tutelary authority of the King. He recollected that when after the defeat at Waterloo, Europe invaded the country, and the ticle of a gloomy character on the present state of the kingdom. "Dangers," says the Gazette, whole world pointed out the Bourbons as being called to reign over France, there were men who asked of the Kings to impose on France a feeign Prince .- (Bravo on the right; murmurs on

M. Benjamin Constant replied, that he believd in the existence of a faction that had ever instigated to revolt against the institutions of he country. Since 1814, there had been a faction that constantly, although secretly, proested against the Charter. This was the facion that by secret letters solicited foreigners to come; and, when it was triumphant, made the south tremble by its excesses and fury. This action had been the cause of all the ills the country had suffered. He (the Hon. Deputy) had pposed a foreign invasion, and was of opinion that no consideration ought to keep a man back from defending the sacred territory of his country, when a foreign invader advanced .fer the defeat at Waterloo, he (M. B. Contant) had the honour to be sent with several of his colleagues to the foreign Sovereigns; but t was only for one object, namely to know how ar it was intended to oppress the national Independence. No Prince, nor any form of Governnent, was asked of foreigners .- The assertion apon this subject was a falsehood.—For the truth of his (the Hon. Deputy's) statement, he would appeal to Gen. Lafavette and Gen. Sebastiani, the went with himself on the mission; and he would defy those who had made the false asserion, to prove it. He said that in calling on General Lafayette, he called one who, not withstanding the differences of opinion, was renected in two worlds, and who must be believe ed, for he had defended the throne on the 10th of August. Voice on the right. But be was asleep on he 6th October. M. Constant again appealed to Gen. Lafay. tte and Sebastiani.

A Voice on the right. Name the third. Other voices. It was M d'Argenson. M. B. Gonstant. They will confirm all 1 have said, and in descending from this tribune I oune, was stopped by the President, who said General Lafayette had the right to speak as to personal matter. Gen. Lafayette. I embrace the occasion offered me of giving a formal contradiction to an assertion which I have several times heard: and as to which I am glad to explain myself from this tribune. No, gentlemen, have never invoked the intervention of fareigners to decide the fate of my country; and I should feel more hurt, were it not that the party who accura-me must, from ancient habits, regard the offence (peche) as a venial one." Braves on the left.)

Gen. La Fayette .- As to myself, after an unfortunate experiment, I may call it, when I saw strangers ready to invade my country for the first time since the name of Emperor, nay even the name of the first Consul for life had been pronounced, I believed it my duty to rally every effort to defend my countrymen and repel foreign invasion. I listened to no other considerations when I had the honor of being named a member of the Chamber of Representatives, and of heing chosen with my honorable col-leagues to attend the conferences of Hagneneau. That mission I accepted with regret, be never believed that my intervention could be as useful as my resistance might have been in those precincts. However, I submitted to the wish precincts. However, I submitted to the wish expressed by my fellow-citizens and colleagues. I never asked for foreign intervention, or for a foreign prince; and honestly I should have been at a loss to know which of those foreign princes to ask for. [A laugh.] All my desire was that the French nation should have time to give itself. as I thought it had a right to do, a constitution of its own choice. Such, gentlemen, has been my conduct. I will avail myself of this occasion. to make one other remark. For a long time, may say daily. I have heard the Cortes insulted on this tribune, [murmurs on the right,] those patriotic Spaniards. [Louder murmurs.] Allow me to protest against this habit. (Question!) I will not dwell on principles or facts.—I do not like to agitate those questions or reconstructions. do not like to agitate those questions or pre-voke irritating discussions. (Tunult.) I will only say that the Cortes, those patriotic Spanonly say that the Cortes, those patriotic Span-iards of whom so much evil is spoken.—(Voice on the right. And who have done so much more.) Those patriots defended the liberty of their country, and even the crown of Ferdinand VII. (From the right.—They held him prison-er! from the left. Silence! At an epoch when that Prince was giorifying Napoleon at Valen-cay, congratulating the Emperor on the con-quest of Madrid, and requesting King Joseph to accept his oath of fidelity!

M. de Conny declared that the fact he had advanced appeared to him to result from the deiberations of the Chamber of that period. General Sebastiani protested that among the diplomatists there never was any question of a oreign Prince, as they who treated in the name of the foreign Sovereigns would attest." The grant, slightly modified by the Commitee, was then voted by a majority of 201 against

As a lad, the son of Dr. Moore, of Arch St. was driving a gir up Markot street yesterday afternoon, baving with him his mother, the horse took fright, and becoming unmanageable, proceeded at his atmost speed up the street. By the notice in the London papers of the anual exhibition of paintings at Somerset House, we observe that our countrymen, Leslie and Newton, have been again distinguishing themselves-the former, by a picture embodying the story from the Spectator, of Sir Roger de Coverly and the Gypsies-and the latter, by another exquisite scene from Gil Blas.

A ROYAL AUTHORESS. We learn from the London Gazette, "that illustration of the re-herche pursuits of fashionable life, by means of novels, is now about to receive its highest perfection. The New Orleans Courier, of the 12th ult. says--" The French man-of-war brig Baucis, under the command of Mr. Fournier, captain of frigate, arrived last night in port, from Vera Cruz, having on board Mr. Martin, Consul General of France in Mexico, who is going to New York by the river. At 12 o'clock this day the Bancis fired a salute of 21 guns, which was returned by a detachment of the battalion of ar tillery. Shortly after, Capt. Every one who has crossed our noble aqueduct, recollects the fine walk upon the coping. On this walk, a few days since, a young lad was met by a swaggering fellow, who rudely laid his hand upon her shoulder. From the impulse of the moment (voluntarily, we hope,) the lady gave Mr. Impertinence such a sudden and violent push, that he instantly found himself in the aqueduct, floundering in a depth of four feet of water, with his hat and wig, like Gilpin's, (floating, though not in the air,) at a respectful distance from his bald head. The lark soon became tame, and sneaked off to his lodgings to prepare for some other fest. May every such impertinent fellow meet with equal justice!-Little Falls People's Friend.

PRESERVED FLOWERS.

At the late very beautiful and interesting exnibition of the Horticultural Society, we noticed some Botanic specimens, deposited by P. A. Browne, Esq. of singular beauty. The form and colour of the flowers were admirably preserved. Being very closely attached to a sheet of white paper, they had the appearance of fine paintings. The attractive soience of Botany has many votaries in our city, some of whom are no doubt engaged in the formation of Herbariums,-with such, a knowledge of the process practised by this gentleman, would be justly considered a valuable acquisition.

A man, evidently deranged, came into the Police Office on Tuesday evening, and desired the Magistrates to send him to the prison at Sing-Sing, as a punishment, he said, for a perjury he had committed. He appeared to be about thirty-five years of age, and gave his name as Peter Arrowsmith, from New Jersey. The Magistrates being satisfied of his insanity, put him in charge of the Commissioners of the Almshouse. Yesterday he became so noisy and unruly, that the keeper was obliged to remove him into ano ther apartment, where he was left alone. On opening the room, about an hour and a half af-terwards, he was found lifeless. He had suspended himself to the lock of the door, by his acket, the sleeves of which were tied around his neck. The lock being the usual height from the floor, the deceased, in order to accomplish his design, was obliged to go upon his knees, and in this position he was found. It is supposed he was from either Monmouth, N. J. or Ballston, N. Y .- N. Y. Gaz.

Extract of a letter, dated Matanzas, May 20th. "Yesterday, H. B. M. schr. Monkey, arrived at this port, bringing in the schr. Portrait. Capt. Foster, of the Portrait, from Wilmington, when on the Bahama Banks, near the Berry Islands, saw a suspicious looking vessel, which kept reconnoitering near him all day; and as she showed no colours, he became alarmed, supposing her to be a pirate, and took to the boat with all hands except his son, (a boy) who saying he had no fear of the pirates, refused to accompany them, and made for a large brig in sight. About dark, the Commander of the M. boarded the Portrait, and seeing no person on board, he procured a light, and looking down in the hold, found the boy, who had secreted himself among the lumber. He called to him, saying, "come out my boy, we are friends."-The boy hearing him speak English, came up from his hiding place, and found it was the Lieutenant of the same schr. which had so alarmed his father, and all hands except himself. They then manned the schr., and took her to Nassau, N. P., and from thence convoyed her to this port. The boy has now command of the vessel, which is in charge of the American Consul. Nothing has yet been heard of Capt. Foster, or the rest of the crew."

We have also been favored with an extract of a letter from a merchant in Matanzas, of the same date, to a gentleman in this city, which gives a similar account of the affair; adding, however, that "after manning the Portrait, they lay to about a day, in hopes that Capt. F. and crew would return to her. The Monkey makes no claim for salvage. There are four of these vessels cruising, and they certainly have a most suspicious, if not a piratical appearance.-No late piracies."

Destruction of Insects by Tobacco Water. In the process of preparing tobacco for use, a liquid is expressed from it, which is very cheap, and highly destructive of animal life. Tanners exempt from Consumption "Your tanner will last for nine years," ex-claime the Grave-digger in Hamlet; and if we are to put trust in the following theory reporter in the Lancet, his occupation is as favourable to the body of the tanner, before, as after death. At a meeting of the Westminster Medical Society, held on the 14th ult. Dr. Dodd read a pape on the exemption of tanners from phthisis p monalis, and the efficacy of the aroma of oal bark, in the cure of that complaint. The following circumstance had first drawn his attention to the subject:--He had had a patient, a weaver, twenty-five years of age, who was suffering under all the symptoms of phthisis pulmonalis; symptoms which were so marked, that he only thought of mitigating them, not curing the com-plaint. He treated him accordingly; but at the end of three weeks the man suddenly quitted his residence, and went he knew not where .-Twelve months after, he met with him again and then found he had become a tanner, be cause, as the man said, "tanners were never af fected with consumption." To the truth of this, the man's appearance bore considerable test mony, for instead of a consumptive patient, he was then a strong, stout, healthy man. This case produced a considerable impression on his (Dr. Dodd's mind, whose theory seems to enounter considerable incredulity on the part of his professional brethren.

The alarm of fire, between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning, was occasioned by the partial burning of Mesers. Wetherill's red lead manufactory, in Walnut street, near the Schuylkill, Considerable damage, we understand, was done; though the elacrity of the firemen was remarkable, even in them.

In the late terrible explosion of the Steam Frigate, which has cast such a gloom over our city, the mind seeks almost in vair for a single incident upon which to dwell with complacency. desolation—a shattered wreck, the only rem-nant of what once was the pride of human ingenuity; bodies mangled, bloody, sundered, and dispersed, sole vestiges of the manly ferms which but a few moments before thought and moved, and acted—the noblest work of a Ditine intelligence; a mother refusing to recognize the blackened and distorted features of her son; a wife departing frantic from the corps of her husband; —a detail to disgust, a scene to inspire horror. Even the exertions of the veteran commander and his officers, however actively readered, we look on but as mere obedience to duty, or, at best, to the sympathies of ordinary humanity; yet, was there not wanting one instance of stern and unmoved endurance, of extreme suffering, worthy of all admiration!

Those who have visited the scene of disaster or are familiar with its details, know that, of the fearful list of killed and wounded, a few were driven piecemeal by the concussion itself, whilst a greater number were crushed beneath the descending fragments of the decks and spars .-Among the sufferers from the last cause was Midshipman Eckford. He was standing at the gangway with the boatswain; and, by a singular fatality, this man-haply a good fellow, but who, like most old sailors, would, may be, have liked nothing better than a wooden leg, a pen-sion, and some one to bore with the story of his adventures; charging his mutilation to the last war, as his memory grew defective—sustained no injury, whilst young Eckford, falling inboard at the moment of the shock, was caught by a descending beam, which crushed his leg at the side of the vessel, and there left him suspended. When the boats, called from every side by the shricks of the wounded and dying, arrived, an officer of the Natchez discovered young Eckford, surrounded by miserable men and women. who were supplicating assistance in heart-rending accents, and many of them asking it, who were rescued but to expire. Not a group, not a supplication escaped the youth; his check was unblanched, his features not even expressive of agony. His efforts were employed in grasping beam to keep his head up, and the weigh of his body from bearing upon the shattered limb. Though assistance was unasked, it was not the less freely rendered. Instant endeavors were made to raise the beam which confined him; but the excessive weight of the mass which loaded it, baffled every exertion; no muscular force could move it. In this emergency the ready ingenuity of the officer suggested the application of the jack-screw, and one was soo brought from the shore. But all this took time: nor was it the work of a moment, to apply the screw, and finally to bring it into action. An hour went by ere the youth was extricated; yet not a murmur of impatience, nor a groan escaped him. His only words were in direction or encouragement to those who were aiding himexclaiming, from time to time, "Hurrah my hearties!" "There it moves" His only reprodu was to the sailor, who, when the beam was raised, attempted, rather rudely, to withdraw the fractured limb. The sailor supported him whilst he performed the office himself.

We can admire the early heroism of Spartan the savage, and surely we should not be backward in rendering equal praise for equal endu-rance to an afflicted youth, in our own city, if it may aid him in bearing pain or resisting misfortune. The laurel wreath is freely awarded to him who nobly dares in the cause of his country; nor should we be backward in extending it same cause, is only called upon to suffer with

The use of imple VAPOUR as a luxury and cleanser of the skin, is highly salutary. While the sensations experienced are those of delight, simple Vapour has a very decisive effect in beautifying the skin, which it renders both soft and delicate, removing the morphew, freekles, grubs, pimples, and eruptions of the face. Of the powers of simple Vapour, directed to this particular object, the most satisfactory references can be given.—To the frequent use of the Bath, the Ladies of the East are chiefly indeleted for that peculiar softness of the skin, and that delicacy and beauty of omplexion, for which they have so long been established. In addition to this, it ordinarily augments the appetite, in stimulating the skin, it acts sympathetically on the stomach. to this, it ordinarily augments the appetate, in stimulat-ing the skin, it acts sympathetically on the stomach, and imparts energy to the functions of this organ. The idea that its use renders subsequent, exposure to the air improper or injurious, ample experience has demon-strated a popular error, or a vulgar prejudice. The pro-prietor feels satisfied that it needs only a trial to be highly appreciated.
